

RTEI Community of Practice

Advocacy Presentations

In 2017, RESULTS Educational Fund supported five national civil society organizations partnered with the Right to Education Index (RTEI) to conduct advocacy campaigns based on their 2016 findings. Three of those partners will present the main issues around the right to education in their countries and the outcomes from the advocacy strategies they implemented to address these issues.

Date: December 13, 2017

Time: 5:00 am EST / 5:00 pm WIB / 1:00 pm EAT / 12:00 pm CAT

Education is a human right with immense power to transform. On its foundation rest the cornerstones of freedom, democracy and sustainable human development
– Kofi Annan

Indonesia

RTEI Score: 77/100

Issue areas: SDG 4 monitoring, Safe learning environments, Children with disabilities

NEW Indonesia will present four advocacy strategies related to RTEI including education policy, parliament, mass media, and citizen engagement. They will discuss advocacy outcomes related to children with disability and inclusive education emphasizing bottom-up approaches working with students, parents, and teachers.

Tanzania

RTEI Score: 73/100

Issue areas: Gender discrimination, Children with disabilities, Data availability

HakiElimu will present the experiences conducting advocacy around pregnant girls' re-entry to schools and overall gender discrimination in education in Tanzania. They will discuss the HakiElimu Friends of Education network and their use of media to understand national sentiment on right to education issues in Tanzania.

Zimbabwe

RTEI Score: 72/100

Issue areas: Corporal punishment, Safe learning environments

The Education Coalition of Zimbabwe (ECOZI) will share RTEI 2017 advocacy strategies to promote the right to education in Zimbabwe, particularly emphasizing the end to corporal punishment. They will discuss how RTEI was translated from research to advocacy in their campaign.

The Right to Education Index community of practice focuses on strengthening and sharing experiences about education advocacy towards the full satisfaction and fulfillment of the right to education. We focus specifically on partners' and stakeholders' experiences with RTEI but also co-create and link with growing networks of education advocates worldwide. The RTEI Community of Practice is specifically for RTEI partners and stakeholders and not meant to replace or duplicate any other communities in which members belong. In that spirit, we invite all members to cross-post materials from other networks and invite cross-collaboration whenever possible. For more information, please email rtei@results.org.